

1 Introduction

Before the explosion of the internet there was little need for distributed computing, most heavy processing was done by mainframe solutions. In the early late 90's there came a huge surge in internet user activity.